EXCERPT FROM THE ST. EDWARD'S MISSION STATEMENT

“Graduates should be prepared, through training in critical and creative thinking as well as moral reasoning, to analyze problems, propose solutions, and make responsible decisions.”

COURSE DESCRIPTION

People become morally educated, rather than trained, insofar as they achieve a grasp of the principles of ethical analysis and the motivation to choose, organize, and assess their own values and actions by means of those principles. Ethics is more than being religious, following a code of conduct, or having proper etiquette. It implies deciding for ourselves by means of a moral decision making process, based upon human reason and defensible moral principles, what to do and to believe. To be ethical implies that one has acted through self-motivation, with open-mindedness, and always with an eye to normative moral principles. This course will focus on normative theories and moral decision making. By means of lectures, class discussions involving your own reflective thinking, and group working sessions, we will explore the question, “what does it mean to be ethical?”

ATTENDANCE

Since we have only a limited number of class meetings, absences become highly problematic. You are therefore expected to attend every class from beginning to end. If there is some emergency which would necessitate your absence or tardiness this should be settled with the instructor before the class in which you will be absent or tardy. Assignments will still be due on the designated date. (See also the policy on late work below.)

PAPER SUBMISSIONS

Quizzes and Exams will be held in-class. Your three papers will be submitted through Blackboard. If you have technical problems, call the Help Desk at 512.448.8443.

EXTRA CREDIT & REVISIONS

There will not be extra credit in the class. But, it will be possible to earn a few extra points. I will give you feedback on each of your first three Essays. You can then revise a second draft based on my feedback. If I think your paper addresses my comments and is significantly improved, I'll regrade it for a higher score. NOTE: Only papers getting below an 80% can be resubmitted; if you get a 'B' or higher, you should be happy with it. If you do revise, the highest possible new score is a 'B'.

LATE WORK

We have only 7 meetings, so each session really matters. You are expected to attend all three hours of every class. If you miss an in-class quiz, you forfeit the points. If you miss an exam, you must schedule a make-up with me before your absence, or you forfeit the points. You are responsible for submitting out-of-class assignment by their due dates, even if you miss class on that day. Late Essay assignments will be accepted for no more than one week after the due date. A penalty of one letter grade will be applied to late work. Any assignment not submitted by one week after the due date gets an automatic 0 points.

TIME COMMITMENT

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), <http://sacscoc.org/>, which is one of the accrediting agencies in the U.S. in conjunction with the Department of Education, now requires all faculty to list the approximately number of hours each assignment will take. The general rule of thumb is that each three-credit hour course will take approximately 135 – 150 hours of work and so in a seven-week class this averages out to about 20 hours per week. Of course, depending on the skill level of each student, some may take less time and others more, but in general those who strive for an 'A' will probably study more than those to strive for a 'C'. Having read the material is not equal to having learned the material. After each week and/or assignment I list the number of hours I estimate it will take you to complete the work at 'A' level. This should help you plan your schedule. See the Assignments section below for specific estimates.

EXPECTED TIME COMMITMENT:

Class time	20 hours
Class preparation and assignments	115 hours
Total	135 hours

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Students are expected to maintain high standards of academic integrity in all work for this course. The core values of academic and personal integrity include: honesty, fairness, trust, respect, and responsibility. Plagiarism is a serious offense, but is often committed unintentionally when a student fails to cite a source properly (or at all) or when she or he inadequately paraphrases a source. Intentional plagiarism will result in an automatic “F” for the course and will be reported to the Registrar. The St. Edward's University Undergraduate Bulletin and the Student Handbook state that a student who is dishonest in any work may receive the maximum penalty of a mark of F for that course. Withdrawal from a course is not allowed when an F in the course for academic dishonesty has been imposed. Students caught intentionally committing academic dishonesty in this course will be subject to the full range of penalties as described in the Undergraduate Bulletin and in the Student Handbook. <http://think.stedwards.edu/deanofstudents/studenthandbook/academicintegrity>

INCOMPLETES POLICY

The grade of I (Incomplete) is given at the sole discretion of the instructor and with the approval of the dean. A grade of I must always be requested by the student; it is not automatically earned. To qualify for an Incomplete, students must have completed no less than one-half of the work in a course and have attended no fewer than one-half of the scheduled class meetings. The student must be able to document that the situation qualifies as exceptional. Exceptional circumstances include but are not restricted to a death in the immediate family; the onset of a serious medical condition; or an unexpected change in job or family circumstances. Exceptional circumstances do not include situations that can be considered a normal part of living. Course work must be completed and a grade submitted by the instructor to the Office of the Registrar no later than October 1 for summer courses, March 1 for fall courses and July 1 for spring courses, or a grade of F will be entered on the transcript. Please consult the Undergraduate Bulletin for details which can be found online at http://think.stedwards.edu/avpacademicaffairs/sites/think.stedwards.edu.avpacademicaffairs/files/undergraduate_bulletin.pdf

ASSIGNMENTS

Quizzes will be administered in class. These will have a short-answer format (multiple choice, matching, etc). Quizzes are meant to test your basic comprehension of the reading and the concepts we discuss in class. Quizzes are your early-warning system: If you're not doing well on the quizzes, you need to reevaluate your study habits.

Exams will be administered in class. These will include both short-answer and long-answer questions (written answers from one sentence to one paragraph in length). Exams are meant to test your ability to analyze and apply the main concepts in the course. Exams are your chance to practice the skills needed for your papers.

In addition to quizzes and exams, you will have four essay assignments. These count for more than half your total grade. In-depth instructions are available on pp. 10-14 of the Moral Reasoning coursepack.
